Wants Turks to Move Out

Fulbright's Cyprus Peace Plan

By The Associated Press

ISTANBUL.

The United States has proposed that Turkish Cypriots be transferred from Cyprus in an effort to solve the explosive situation on the Mediterranean island, Turkish Foreign Office sources said yesterday.

They said the proposal was made by President Johnson's envoy, Sen. J. William Fulbright, who departed yesterday morning after a one-day fact finding mission.

The Turks were upset by the suggestion and told Sen. Fulbright Turkey could never accept a solution that was against its national honor and interests, informants said.

Sen. Fulbright, who visited London and Athens before arriving in Ankara for talks with Premier Ismet Inonu and other Turkish officials, was told that "physical separation of Greek and Turkish communities on Cyprus" was the only solution. This means some kind of partition.

There were no details on the reported proposal to transfer Turks from Cyprus. U. S. officials on Cyprus have voiced similar ideas, coupling them with the suggestion that Cyprus be made part of Greece. Turkish Cypriots—there are about 100,000 of them—would be offered free transport plus indemnity to the new locale, presumably Turkey.

Sen. Fulbright flew to Amsterdam yesterday and then went to The Hague for the 15th anniversary celebration of the U. S. Education Foundation in The Netherlands. Today he was to meet Queen Juliana.

Fulbright Proposal

Surprises State Dept.

From the Herald Tribune Bureau
WASHINGTON.

The State Department was surprised yesterday at the reported Fulbright proposal to move Turks off Cyprus. He reportedly had no intention of making specific proposals when he left Washington on Monday.

It was thought possible that the idea might have arisen in the course of informal discussions of various possible solutions to the Cyprus question. "We have made no proposals," a spokesman said. "We wish only to be helpful. We do not wish to impose anything on anybody."
